8. SUSTAINABILITY

Sustainability and accessibility are crucial for the 2024 UEC Road European Championships, as the event offers a unique opportunity to spread a sustainable message to a large audience and minimize the sport's impact on the environment. Cycling events, with their extensive logistics and participants, often have a significant ecological footprint. By embracing sustainability during the European Cycling Championships, we can drive positive change and set an inspiring example for the sporting community and fans.

As a sporting community, we must demonstrate climate responsibility for attending the 2024 UEC Road European Championships by minimizing the impact wherever possible and compensating for our unavoidable emissions.

Below are some action points that national federations can take to reduce their impact and make more sustainable choices:

FLYING:

- Fly Less: Try to limit flying as much as possible. See if it's possible to also travel to the European Championship using other means of transportation such as train or car. Reducing air travel is the best way to decrease emissions.
- Fly Economy: If flying is chosen, opt for economy class. Flying in economy class emits less per person than flying in business or first class.
- Fly Direct: opt for direct flights, if possible, instead of flights with layovers. Direct flights use less fuel, thus emitting fewer emissions.

TRANSPORTATION EQUIPMENT & PEOPLE:

- Choose the greenest option: opt for the most environmentally friendly transportation option. This applies to both transporting people and goods such as bicycles. Choose electric or hybrid vehicles to reduce emissions.
- Never drive empty: Ensure that cars and trucks never drive empty.

ACCOMMODATION:

- Close to the venues: Choose accommodations that are close to the venues. This reduces transportation to and from the venues.
- Green Key label: Look for accommodations that have the Green Key label. Hotels with the Green Key label have committed themselves to sustainability and environmentally friendly practices. This means they are dedicated to energy conservation, water conservation, waste reduction, and the use of eco-friendly products.

COMPENSATION:

Taking responsibility for unavoidable travel emissions associated with participation in the UEC European Cycling Championships 2024 can be achieved by offsetting these emissions. This can be done through carbon offsetting. This is the process by which you compensate for the emissions you produce by funding projects that help absorb an equivalent amount of CO₂ from the atmosphere.

Together we can make a difference and attempt towards a greener future for cycling and the planet as a whole.
